ABOUT UVILLE:

Why Uville? It's simple. As a mother of three young children, I said to myself, "I would never drop my 8 year old off at the mall to roam and shop alone. So why would I let her log into the internet to search & play by herself?" I thought there had to be a better way for me to be more involved, continue to foster a parent-child relationship, yet encourage my child to be part of this online world. I felt like I needed to know my children were safe and having fun, but I also wanted them learning and not ONLY playing "fun" games.

In short, I wanted to feel good about the time my children were spending on the computer and so the idea for Uville was born. I wanted Uville to be more of a one stop shop for kids. We have a host of games to play, many of which are educational. Our aim is to provide a myriad of things to do including activities that allow a parent and child to play/work together and talk about responsibility at home and on the internet.

What makes Uville different...

We are "safe & fun" like everyone else on the block. Where we believe we are different is our desire to help children be creative, curious, and learn how to express themselves. Our characters make the difference as they encourage your child to take a journey through not only our games but also great educational exercises and areas where they can express themselves.

Why is the website named Uville?

This website is about self-expression and YOU. There are many opportunities for your child to put his or her personal touch on the activities. We get that this generation is accustomed to personalizing everything, so we wanted to make the town and experience all about you.

Who are you people?

We are a group of families with young children. Our work background is in sales, marketing, education, and finance. Oh yeah... did we also mention that we are soccer & basketball coaches, Brownie leaders, and board members of the PTO to name a few? We are busy parents, just like you, that want the best for our kids.

You also have the opportunity to play games or activities on MyUville.com. My favorite part of MyUville.com is the different characters that you can play with and have fun. It's amazing the things you can do with them.

Through MyUville.com your child will benefit by having a website for kids that provides a safe, parent approved, interactive online environment for kids ages 5-12. Uville promotes creativity, self expression and learning in a world filled with games learning and fun. Visit MyUville.com to see what all the FUN is about!
